She has directly contributed to the mission of organization with successful activities ranging from fundraising to program development to outreach. She is quick to volunteer for tasks, whether they are creative brainstorming sessions or physically exhausting tasks that support the logistics of an event or activity.

During 2013, Karine served as time volunteer for a Al Wafaa Campaing in the Rotterdam, Holland. During this time, I listened as she shared ideas and creative strategies that resulted in her meeting and exceeding the expectations I also directly benefitted from her expertise. Although he received no income for his service, Karine Garcez never missed a day of work, and worked long hours each day to contribute enthusiastically to the organization offering the volunteering.

Socially, Karine Garcez is well-respected and liked by both peers and mentors, and she is eager to listen to the thoughts of others. Although she demonstrates great skills as a leader, Karine Garcez knows well how to work as a team player, and he has always sought out and been open to the feedback and ideas of others on how to further his work and service. She is very flexible and adapts well to new situations, people, and ideas.
